Jeff Tesreau Adds to His Fame by Pitching a No-Hit Game.

PHILLIES BEATEN TWICE

Marquard Driven to Cover in the Second Game, but His Teammates Bat Out a Victory.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.)
Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—Jeff Tegreau, the massive but youthful spitball twirler of the Giants, attained the topmost pinnacle of pitching fame this afternoon, when he shut out Philadelphia without a hit. while his team mates were engaged in winning a double header by scores of 8 to 6 and 9 to 8. Incidentally, the Giants are now eight full games in front of the Only one tap made by the Phillies off Tesreau's delivery could possibly be con strued as a hit. That was by Paskert, the first batter up in the first inning. Philadelphia outfielder popped the ball between Merkle and Wilson, and either one of them could have easily cap-Both tried, but neither suc ceeded in fastening on to the sphere. It could have been scored as either a hit or an error, and while the official scorer was disposed to call it a hit he was so doubt that after the game he questioned Merkle about the play. New York first baseman declared that the oall landed in his mitt and bounced out. Wilson corroborated the statement. This settled the question, and it will go down on the records as a no-hit game.

For the rest of the struggle only three of the Phillies saw first base. Two got on in the third on Fletcher's fumble pass, while Dodge walked in the eighth. While Tesreau struck out only one man, his crackling curves snapped over the plate with terrific speed, baffling the

Perhaps there is something significant in the coincidence Saler, lb. and McGraw has another king under his

Tesreau joins a select company twirlers by his performance, some of whom are his own teammates. Matty and Wiltse are in this class, while Ames once twirled nine innings without allowing a hit, only to go four more frames and lose his game. There has not been a io-hit game pitched in the National League since 1908. In that year Wiltse triumphed over the Phillies and Rucker over Boston. In 1909 Ames in opening the season against Brooklyn twirled nine hitless frames, but weakened in the thir-

Hamilton, of the St. Louis Browns, recently pitched a no-hit game against Detroit, while Joe Wood, of Boston, and Ed Walsh, of Chicago, earned the order of distinction last year. It might be stated here that only three pitchers in the big leagues have ever twirled more than one no-hit game. Mathewson, Cy Young and Addie Joss form an association of their wn, with two apiece. Mathewson pitched his second one against the Cubs in 1906.

As a foil for his brilliant masterpiece Tesreau drew Rixey, the young Philadelthis southpaw, who is supposed to be some pumpkins as a twirler. The Glants made short shrift of him, gathering seven hits in the six innings he faced them. These, coupled with four passes and a wild pitch, netted three runs, which were more than enough to win the game.

Two of the tallies were picked up in the third frame, which Wilson and Fletcher opened with singles. Tesreau sacrificed, and then Otis Crandall, batting for Devore, came through with a timely hit which brought both men home. In the fourth Merkle singled, only to be forced by Herzog. Wilson drew a pass, and Herzog stole second. Dodge made a great stop and throw to nip Wilson at second, but Herzog counted.

The second contest was an uprosrious affair in which the Giants came from behind with their old-time punch and won against odds. Marquard started and was opposed by Finneran, a recruit, and, although his team mates piled up a lead of three runs for him, the famous southpaw failed to hold it. Four singles and a double in a row in the fifth inning netted three runs and tied the score. When Crandall passed Luderus and Walsh singled to start the last half of the eighth McGraw called upon his old right bower, Mathewson, to come in and rock the Phillies to sleep.

Matty was equal to the occasion, as usual, and retired the side without a run being scored. Hits by Murray, Merkle and Fletcher gave the Giants a run in the ninth. A pass to Savage, batting for Chalmers, and Mangus's double gave the Phillies a run in their half, but a sharp double play, Murray to Doyle, on Miller's fly, ended the game. The scores follow

ATHLETICS SCORE FOUR

Luck Frowns on McConnell, Who Holds the Champions to Five Safeties.

Luck flirted with George McConnell in the most brazen manner at American League Park yesterday afternoon. The treacherous coquette changed from smiles to frowns so often that the elongated twirler was bewildered. When an error Collins let the Yankees tle the score the fickle damsel was going to let New York get away with the game after all, but suddenly she changed her mind and the Athletics made it three straight. The score was 4 to 2.

McConnell drew Crabb, one of Connie Mack's youngsters, as an opponent, and outpitched the debutante so badly that there was no balm but victory which could assuage his grief. While McConnell was Yankees were industriously piling up a total of fourteen for their day's work besides the New York team could not and at that had to have the help of two errors by their opponents. Being right on the verge of victory in every inning. Wolverton's minions could not deliver the telling punch with the score tied in the eighth inning McInnis's sacrifice bunt and hurled it through McMillan at second and Lelivelt in centre field, which was some hurling, in a manner of speaking. During the chase McInnis reached third. He was squeezed home by the most approved Philadelphia method when Barry laid down a bunt to Chase. These were the runs which spelled victory with a capital V.

It took some sharp fielding to keep twelve of the Yankees languishing on the base sanatoriums, but the Athletics were equal to the emergency. Eddie Collins was the moving spirit in this fell conspiracy, and although he made a silly throw to Lapp, which let in a run, he handled seven put-outs and four assists with perfect case.

with the utmost affection when such a display of sentiment was most to be ap preclated. The great home run hitter ab his nine, and two of them resulted directly or indirectly in as many runs Barry rapped out a triple to left field that hugging first at the time and cantered home without undue effort.

When McConnell thoughtlessly issued a pass to Eddie Collins in the first frame after retiring two men, the way was shaped for a run. Eddle lost no time in stealing second, so that when Baker fired single to left Colline tallied. The visitors then subsided until the sev

Paddock had to make a fine play to toss out McInnis, but Strunk drew a pass and scored on Barry's triple to left. Baker opened the ninth with a hot one to right and planned to go only to second on Mcthrow on an attempted force play, the ball rolling to the outfield, so that J. Franklin scored and McInnis took third. After spite his generosity the Braves failed Strunk had fouled to Sweeney, Barry bunted, scoring McInnis on a squeeze

Connie Mack and His Men to Boy Also Eliminates Clark in Wind Up Here with a Double-Header.

One hundred and fifty athletes, the pick of this district, will strive for medals and glory in the senior metropolitan track and field games at Travers Island this afternoon. Eighteen events make up the programme and judging by the entries there will not be a dull moment from start to the clay courts of the New Rochelle La finish. The meeting, coming as it does, on the eve, so to speak, of the national championships at Pittsburgh on September 20 and 21, will furnish a line on what men can be counted on to ably represent this city at the more important fixture.

The New York Athletic Club and the Irish-American Athletic Club will once more fight it out for the team honors, with the chances in favor of the latter. The Mercury Foot men outscored their rivals at the Olympic games, but the Irish-American team looks particularly formidable for the games to-day with such men named as Mel Sheppard, Abel Kiviat, Jim Rosenberger, Jack Eller, Tom Collins, Martin Sheridan, Pat McDonald and Matt McGrath, to say nothing of some good second string runners and jumpers. In the junior championships a week ago the two clubs finished in a tie, and it is quite possible, of course, that the New

Charley Reidpath, J. J. Wendell, Dave Noble, Harry Babcock, Eddie Frick, K. Miss Holden to take the set and man Caldwell and Fred Kalser, among others, will put up a fight that may carry it to the front. In any case everything points to a great battle. Dave Noble, who won the junior title, says he is ready to again measure strides at one mile with Kiviat, who beat him by a narrow margin over a heavy track on Labor Day in 4:25. He is aiming high, however, as Kiviat, the national champion, is in fine condition, and is quite likely to run in record time under favorable conditions. While the one mile run may be the feature, every race is brimful of interest, with close finishes in Trains for Travers Island will leave the
